introduce students to the four quarters of the Old City, as well as its walls and gates, and reconstruct the changing features of the biblical city during the times of David, Solomon, Hezekiah, the Maccabees, and Jesus. Overviews from surrounding hills and visits to models of the city during biblical times help clarify the city's development.

Regional Field Studies

- The Benjamin Field Study crosses the strategically located tribal territory of Benjamin from east to west following biblical stories such as Joshua's entrance into the Promised Land, his relief expedition to the cities of the Gibeonites, Jesus' journeys from Jericho to Jerusalem, and Paul's night flight from Jerusalem toward Caesarea.
- The Judah, Shephelah, and Philistine Coast Field Study takes a Judean perspective on the regions to the west to explain David's confrontation with Goliath in the Elah Valley and the famous Assyrian siege of Lachish. The trip also explores the tension in the New Testament between Herod and the Jews.
- The Negev and Great Wilderness Field Study transports students to Patriarchal times at the site of Beer Sheva and allows them to explore the Great Wilderness of the Israelite wanderings. It also recounts the Judean aspirations to secure Red Sea trade and introduces the Nabateans as a people who mastered the trade routes of the Great Wilderness.
- The Dead Sea Area Field Study examines the political and religious contexts of the New Testament period with visits to Masada and Qumran.

- The Sharon Plain and Jezreel Valley Field Study traces the great Coastal Highway north, visits Caesarea where Paul stood trial and where later, the first Jewish Revolt broke out. The trip also looks at biblical battles in the Jezreel Valley and visits Megiddo, the Armageddon of the apocalypse.

- The Galilee Field Study sets the ministry of Jesus within the tense political and ethnic balance created by the cities of the Decapolis to the east, the Samaritans to the south, the seafaring cities of Tyre and Sidon to the west, and the holdings of Herod Antipas.

- The Northern Approaches Field Study journeys through the Huleh Basin to the northern extent of the land at the biblical site of Dan and across the Golan, looking into Syria while recalling ancient routes to Damascus.

- The Jordan Field Study (optional add on) traverses the lands of the ancient Edomites and Moabites and traces the Nabateans to their rock-cut city of Petra. A walk through the Roman-Byzantine city of Jerash—one of the cities of the Decapolis—explores aspects of a Roman city and the beauty of Byzantine architecture.

- The Jerusalem Environs Field Study, takes students on a special two day trip in the Jerusalem region, visiting the Israel and Citadel Museums, touring through Neot Kedumin, the Biblical Landscape Reserve which preserves the flora and fauna of the biblical Israel, and visiting other key sites in the area.
